Brady Williamson

Mike Wittenwyler --

I am the editor of Public Record Media, a non-profit based in St. Paul, MN, that makes requests for public data on the local, state and federal level. We publish the data -- and the stories we write off of the data -- on our website, www.publicrecordmedia.org.

We were interested in a lawsuit that goes back to 2020 that involved WJFW-TV being sued by the Trump campaign over the airing of a political ad put together by Priorities Action USA.

The lawsuit was dismissed, and we've reviewed the court filings in the case. But we were interested in getting some additional information:

-- Do you, or WJFW, know how many stations across the country aired the ad during the 2020 campaign?

-- Do you, or WJFW, know if the Trump campaign filed lawsuits against other media outlets (TV stations, or other) that aired the ad?

-- If the lawsuit against the TV station was the only lawsuit, do you, or WJFW, have any insight as to why the Trump campaign targeted that TV station?

Thanks in advance for your time.
